President's Message

Welcome to Fall and the peak of Hurricane season. Hopefully for our event we will have great weather, and enjoy lunch with friends and comrades. We come from many different departments and subsidiaries, and we all have our own experiences. Our luncheons are a great time to share those experiences.

Fall will just be kicking off for our luncheon after a pretty hot, rainy summer is behind us here in the Philadelphia area. There are some folks who recently left Sun/ETP and they will have their own stories to share on the new Sunoco and Energy Transfer Partners companies, and the refineries.

We continue to work with the Food Cupboard program, and to support local food distribution groups, and ask for your contributions to that fund, so we can continue that tradition. Pat Steadman was able to once again negotiate a great heating oil deal for our Sunoco Retiree and alumni members. See next page for details of the offer. There is also attached a message from ETP that was provided by them as an update to our membership on page 3.

Our holiday luncheon in December is set for Tuesday December 11, 2018. Mark your calendar, and as always we invite you to bring a friend and a spouse/significant other if you wish.

A Message from our sponsors – Energy Transfer Partners

At Energy Transfer and Sunoco Pipeline, we pledge to the communities we cross and the customers we serve that we will operate our pipelines with the highest level of safety at all times. As former Sunoco employees, we want to bring you up to date on progress related to construction of the Mariner East projects, including the Mariner East 2 Pipeline.

Pennsylvania relies on energy — we get it to you safely

Safety is our priority: the safety of our people, the safety of our communities and the safety of the environment. We accomplish this by following a stringent Integrity Management Plan on all asset operations and by going above and beyond regulations when constructing our pipelines.

Mariner East 2 Construction Highlights

We are in the final stages of construction of the Mariner East 2 pipeline. We are happy to report that construction of the Mariner East 20-inch pipeline is nearing completion.

An important part of pipeline construction is the additional safety testing once the pipeline is installed. These tests include hydro testing — testing with water at higher-than-normal operating pressures—and inline inspection using a caliper pig — a supplemental testing tool that continuously measures the inside diameter of the pipeline through an array of spring-loaded sensing fingers.

Important Update

Sunoco Pipeline has identified a section of an existing 12-inch pipeline in southeastern Pennsylvania that will be temporarily repurposed to deliver natural gas liquids to the Marcus Hook Industrial Complex as we continue with the construction of the Mariner East 2 system.

A portion of the 12-inch Point Breeze-to-Montello pipeline — which runs from Wallace Township, Chester County, to Middletown Township, Delaware County — will be used as an interim solution while new environmental assessments of potential construction modifications on a selected number of pending horizontal directional drills are completed.

This section of the pipeline underwent a $30 million upgrade, which included inline and hydro testing, in 2016 as part of our ongoing Integrity Management Plan for all our pipelines.

The result is an upgraded section of pipeline that exceeds the requirements of the Pennsylvania Public Utility Commission (PAPUC) and the Pipeline and Hazardous Materials Safety Administration (PHMSA). All proper permits and notifications with regulatory agencies are in place.
